Leadership Programme for Māori in Public Health

Introduction

This training programme will introduce a variety of key themes and concepts relating to Māori health and development in order to encourage greater leadership amongst Māori working in Public Health.

Digital Indigenous.com will facilitate this programme, which will include some of the country's foremost leaders in different aspects of leadership and Māori health.

Purpose

This programme has been specifically designed for Māori.

This programme aims to:

- ◆ Increase participants' understanding of a broad number of 'cutting edge' leadership issues
- ◆ Provide a safe - but challenging - environment for participants to explore issues related to Māori public health
- ◆ Strengthen participants' networks across the country by fostering support, mentoring, strategy sharing and retention of Māori staff in the public health sector

Description

This 8-day programme consists of four 2-day noho Marae spread over a 4-month period.

The programme sessions are intended to stimulate learning, discussion, debate and, ultimately, action. Therefore the sessions will utilise a wide range of teaching styles most responsive to programme content, interest and energy levels, prior knowledge base, and the learning models of participants. Small group projects will also be undertaken.

Key themes and concepts explored in the programme include:

- ◆ Traditional and Contemporary Māori Leadership Styles in a Global Setting
- ◆ The role of government and policy process in Public Health
- ◆ Understanding Māori self development and determination
- ◆ New frontiers in Māori innovation and entrepreneurship
- ◆ Communication, Facilitation and How to Build Influence and Credibility
- ◆ Strategic Management, Funding and Policy Analysis
- ◆ Turning talk into action project management
- ◆ Workforce development and capacity building
- ◆ Māori perspective of health protection in a regulatory environment

A training folder will be provided which will include all pre-reading material for each session

Participant Eligibility

For participants to be eligible for the programme, they shall be:

- ◆ Māori; and
- ◆ currently employed in an organisation that has a Public Health contract with Ministry of Health or District Health Board; and
- ◆ committed to positive health outcomes for Maori; and
- ◆ committed to attending all four noho Marae
- ◆ committed to completing the programme

Please note:

There will only be 15 - 20 places available for people committed to completing the programme

This programme follows an action learning approach & is NOT on the NZQA framework

Programme Dates

There will be six leadership programmes offered. The first 2 cohorts have a national focus and based at Turangawaewae Marae. Currently we are part way through Cohort One and Cohort Two is fully booked.

The remaining programmes will have a regional focus ie Northland/Auckland; Midland; Central region and South Island. See dates below:
